

We are happy to be part of your medical team. For most people, their primary care practice is the hub of their care. We will communicate with your primary care practice about your medical care in our practice so that your care is coordinated. We will send a report after each visit and if needed call your primary care team to coordinate testing and treatments. We will also work with and coordinate with your other specialists by providing a copy of your visit report to them or calling them if needed.

We are a specialty practice in Endocrinology and Metabolism. You have been referred here for a CONSULTATION type of referral. This means that the doctor who referred you has asked for advice about testing and/or treatment. We will help with the evaluation of a specific disorder or problem and make recommendations to you and your primary care team but we will not manage your care or treat your condition(s). Your plan of care will be decided upon by you with your primary care practice team. We will summarize the recommended care plan options in the medical summary that will be printed for you as you check out.

Occasionally additional testing is needed to complete the consultation. We will notify you of the test results if we order the tests. If we recommend that your primary care physician order the testing, then they will be the practice to notify you of the results. If we order the testing, then once your results are back and analyzed, we will communicate the results to you by phone and/or the patient portal or by a follow up appointment if the results are complex or if we need to discuss different options with you or explain things in more detail.
